Foreword

AT last it's done. The Kaleidoscope is out and our work finished. The business manager has applied for admission to the poor house, the fellow that wrote the grinds is going back to the insane asylum, and the rest of the board are keeping quiet till the cyclone has passed.

We do not know how you will take the book, if we did we could lay our plans for the future with more certainty, but do treat us gently and make as much allowance for our shortcomings as possible. We know you could have done better in our place, at least you ought to. Just bear this in mind and be charitable, "We done our darndest, angels could do no more."

We wish to express our thanks to all those who aided us in getting out the book, in general, and to John Voss and Dale S. Atwood in particular. You helped us greatly.

Senior Letter

WITHIN a few short days the curtain will be finally rung down on the last act of our college drama, which has been four years in the playing, but upon reflection seems too short.

We first disturbed the quiet of this peaceful village in 1907, and for two years the din of our many conflicts served to keep awake the classes of '10 and '12. We were never forced to lower our colors to the former, and the few reverses suffered at the hands of the latter only served to strengthen our hands, mould our minds and sharpen our wits in order to face the more serious conflicts in the battle of life.

Modesty forbids the enumeration of our various achievements, which would be a history in itself, consequently we will only mention in passing that we have furnished our share of leaders in all the various branches of college life—yes, gentle reader, the invaluable leader in scholarship, altho as a whole we do not belong to the plugger class. But we must not forget our basketball team, which, as one of the pioneers of the game here, has maintained its even gait and can now boast of four successive championships.

It is with a feeling of genuine regret that we leave the dear old college, but realizing that it must be, we look back with pride on her advancement during our short stay. With us passes the last of the old guard. We feel doubly blessed in that we were privileged to be connected with Old Midd during her glorious age of transition. May she continue in the future as in the past, and may each link in the chain of loyal classes pledge itself to be as strong as the never-failing link of 1911.

Under the present pilot and with such able crews as follow, we can say good-bye with the assurance that the best 1911 can hope for will shortly come to pass.

The Junior

BY THE grace of the faculty we are upper classmen. We have arrived at the stage where we may publish books, have a Junior Week, be slightly respected by the Freshmen, and, best of all, sit 'way back in our chairs, light our pipes and say, in a tone that places the green button stage of our existence in a period contemporary with the pyramids, "In our Freshman year."

When we are alone, though, we often wonder in a dazed sort of way how we ever did it, but we have finally come to the conclusion that it was evolution and that our first year in college corresponded very closely to the "monkey stage" of the human race.

For we have changed. Well, rather! Some of the fittest did not survive, while others were forced, by pressure of circumstances beyond their power to forestall, to"Leave the loved scenes that their infancy knew" and buck the cold world sans sheepskin.

But, speaking of changes, Tracey and Taylor, the only survivors of the original "one mark club" are among our most regular attendants at chapel, while the auburn-haired Josh was recently seen studying. Rumour has it that Schiller smokes; Towhead Harris was seen on the street with a girl; and Andrus once said "Darn!"

Then there are the co-eds who also are not as once they were, we understand. Cass goes to classes regularly for one thing, and there are other new departures, but the author belongs to the less studious sex and so is not competent to judge of the vicissitudes that have overtaken the other portion of the class.

We have done our part to help the college prosper. In athletics we have done our share and have been rewarded by winning the major portion of our interclass contests. 1911's athletes went down to defeat in both baseball game and track meet when we were only Freshmen, and that 18 to 4 baseball game of a year ago still moves us to laughter. Even in this our Junior year we hold the baseball and track captaincies.

But we will not grow reminiscent. We are looking ahead and in a year we will tell you how it feels to be Seniors.

Sophomore Epistle

THE responsibilities of the universe rest so heavily upon our shoulders that we have scarcely found time to compile for the benefit of posterity this brief epitome of our most notable achievements. Though an unappreciative world looks with indifference on our self-sacrificing labors for the good of humanity, still we persevere in martyr-like devotion, for we realize that the destiny of the ages is in our keeping.

Such a noble conception of duty naturally has had a sobering influence. The petty anxieties of study, the frivolous amusements of a year ago—all have been abandoned in our all-absorbing devotion to the great cause of benefiting mankind—particularly the Freshmen, Faculty, and Juniors. We set about our self-imposed task with an ardor that should have won universal approbation. But we have suffered the fate of all great reformers, for our earnest endeavors for their good are not appreciated by this perverse generation. While it was a grievous disappointment to find the world so stolidly indifferent to our zealous attempts to reform it, we have not lost heart. Posterity will yet elevate us to our deserved pedestal of honor and bow in humility and reverence before our memory.

Until that time we have resolved to lend our labors to the uplifting of an unappreciative universe, and accordingly we have condescended to devote our energy to the most crying need of the age, the chastisement of 1914. We are few, but—. Ask the unnumbered hosts of confusion who had eight hands on the hat while they had but three! Ask the self-confident wearers of the blue and "yaller" why they did not celebrate the anticipated football victory!

Out of pure commiseration for past defeats we allowed '14 a few points in the track meet; but as we do not wish to be ostentatious in our generosity, we refrain from comment. Don't mention the flag scrap! The Freshmen have wished to forget it, and out of sympathy for their helpless state, it has been entirely overlooked.

Of ourselves! Our scholars, musicians, poets, orators, divines, organizers and enthusiasts of no particular breed are legion: you will find their names some day in the Hall of Fame—or the Rogues' Gallery. Modesty forbids further enumeration of our virtues here.

Leaving to future ages the appreciation due our wonderful genius and unselfish devotion, we subscribe ourselves

Freshman Letter

"It is a tale
Told by an idiot: full of sound and fury
Signifying nothing."

DEAR EDITOR:—Here are a few of the valorous exploits of our illustrious class—not all, but just a few. We arrived in Middlebury nearly 100 strong, even if Cap Edes and Snowball were late. At first everybody was so nice. Then suddenly there was a change and a few of our best known members were invited to go quail hunting by moonlight. Whether they enjoyed the honor or not we do not know, as they were too polite to talk about their hosts. However, most of us escaped, for Prexie took pity on our defenceless state and cut out those soirees.

We did lose the hatscrap but we showed our ability to "come back" in the track meet. In football our horseshoe was mislaid but the loss of the game does not count, for we are not mud hens. In basketball the Sophs also bowed to our superior prowess and even 1911's aggregation got an awful scare.

So, taking all things into consideration, you see we have started to carve our little niche in the college Hall of Fame even though we are not "dead ones" yet.

Yours optimistically,

1914

Track Athletics

FOR several years Middlebury has held annual interclass track meets, and there is a tradition of a Varsity team back in the nineties. The spring of 1910 saw the rapid growth of this branch of athletics. We are hoping to place on the field this year a strong and swift aggregation of track men. There are many first-class athletes in college who will become point winners this year with good conscientious work. The interclass meet will show that we have enough material to make a good showing against St. Lawrence on May 20th. We do not expect to break all the existing records immediately but we do ask our friends to watch the new youngsters grow.

Baseball

THE last season was a disappointment. Middlebury had 3 pitchers and a pair of catchers the equal of any men she opposed, but the fielding and hitting were terribly below the standard the team should have attained.

The season started out with a rush, the first jolt being at the hands of Norwich. The next day, however, the team "came back", but after this the play fell off greatly. The third Norwich game was thrown away and then R. P. I. scored five runs on two hits.

The team showed flashes of good form as when the strong University of Maine team was beaten and when Colgate and Hamilton were trimmed on successive days, but the spurts did not last.

Our Director

WHEN the McCullough Gymnasium became an assured fact, President Thomas lost no time in engaging a physical director who should have charge of the required gym. work and who should have general supervision over all the athletics of the college. Ray L. Fisher, 1910, was selected for the position.

The reader, presumably, needs no introduction to "Pick". Certainly all our rivals have come in contact with him; all Middlebury alumni know what he has done for the college on the athletic field; all the small boys in Hartford would rather be "Kid" Fisher than president; a host of baseball fans the country over watched his career with much interest after that baseball game in Chicago last summer when he beat Ed. Walsh with the latter's own pet ball; and all the undergraduates know him as a corking good fellow with the strength of several ordinary humans, a fund of story and a most engaging personality.

Ray seems happy here but he wasn't a bit happier at his good fortune than we were.

LATIN PLAY CASTE

Temporibus Hominis Arpinatis

THE readers of the Kaleidoscope will hardly expect to find upon our pages a detailed account of the Roman Drama of 1910, since it has been so fully described in other recent College publications as to render this history unnecessary. But the following summary may be useful to those of our readers who wish, at a glance, to relate our attempt to the former drama activities at Middlebury:—

Feb. 24, 1898. First toga made.

March 11, 1898. Roman chorus presented in the Chapel before first annual Convention of Latin Teachers of Vermont.

May 1, 1899. Stage of Town Hall rebuilt; C. W. Witham, architect.

May 19, 1899. Temporibus Hominis Arpinatis presented before second annual Convention of Latin Teachers of Vermont.

May, 1900. First Scaena (80x145 feet) built upon Campus.

July 4, 1900. Temporibus Hominis Arpinatis presented on evening of Educational Day, Centennial Week.

1899 to 1910. Middlebury Roman Drama, illustrated before American Archaeological Institute; Harvard University; in Century; Scientific American; other periodicals.

May 1, 1910. Second Scaena built upon Campus.

June 17, 1910. Temporibus Hominis Arpinatis, Public Rehearsal.

June 21, 1910. Temporibus Hominis Arpinatis, Two presentations.

To the participants on the occasion noted above, the unwritten history of our Roman histrionics in the months covering the long period of rehearsals, and behind the scenes during the tense hours of the presentations themselves, has been more entertaining, more instructive and will be longer remembered than the finished productions seen by the audiences.

Of course, as long as we remember Middlebury and have any recollections of Campus, of class-room and the faint clang of Chapel bell, so long will there be the picture before us of Cicero leaping forth in the climactic "In Exsilium"; of Cataline in his swift recoil and furtive glances; of the surrounding circle of faces; of the impressive Trial scene when praetors and senators wavered between duty and wild abandon of fury; of the picturesque Forum with its varied panorama of soldiers, citizens, nobles, flower girls and slaves; of the beauty of the Vestal group; of the "Nine" and "Twice Nine" that, as an enthusiastic spectator exclaimed, did not dance, but floated across the great stage; of the stage effects produced by drops and wings which not only equalled but excelled illusions seen in our large theatres: all these and more are our common possession with the spectators.

But those of us who saw the production "from the inside" have another story to tell. This story began with the huge posters placed at intervals upon the bulletin board, which daily grew more vehement in their efforts to obtain a full attendance at rehearsals, after the cast was completed. The Costume room with its busy toilers was early the scene of energetic labor, then came those many evening rehearsals and the flock of unbidden lookers-on, the Chapel services in the Scaena, impressing all with the size and resonant acoustics of the structure, and finally, the performances themselves, successful beyond all doubt, with their accompaniment of noise, confusion, and the free lunch in the tent outside, and finally the long breath of relief that the work of the Latin Department throughout the many weeks had ended in a blaze of glory.

The Ballad of the Fearless Freshman, or Dodo Crossing the Otter

Brave deeds were done on land and sea
In good King Arthur's time;
But a braver far was done one night
In this far northern clime.

It chanced a verdant freshman
Sat in his room this night,
When up the stairs he heard a tread
That filled him with affright.

A big and brutal sophomore
Came quickly in the room,
And with threats of direst punishment
He led him to his doom.

Now the mind of this bold freshman
Was filled with awful dread,
For he was the freshest freshman here,
So all the sophs had said.

And well he knew that shortly
They would paddle him right well,
And other things might they e'en try,
Things horrible to tell.

A fierce resolve then seized him,
No sooner thought than done!
He rose up and he beat it.
Gee whiz! How he did run!

Down by many gardens,
With Doc in hot pursuit,
Right through Phil Mellen's henhouse
Without a thought of loot.

And now he sees the Otter,
Fair creek of widespread fame,
But swollen now and fearful wide
Because of the dread rain.

But here he tripped and tumbled,
Yet up was he right soon,
For Doc had gained upon him!
He sure was a "gone coon."

One last resource was left him,
It called for courage rare;
But when it came to courage
Why, Marvin was right there.

He threw his coat far from him,
And with set purpose grim,
Without a single tremor
He bravely tumbled in.

Four swift strokes and he was over!
He'd swum the raging stream,
And on down Court and Pleasant streets
He ran, in the moonlight's gleam.

But awful woe and frightful
Did fill Doc's heart with dread;
He did not see young Dodd swim out,
So thought he must be dead.

And then did Doc and Tracey
Start up a fearful noise;
They ran all round the College
Disturbing sleeping boys.

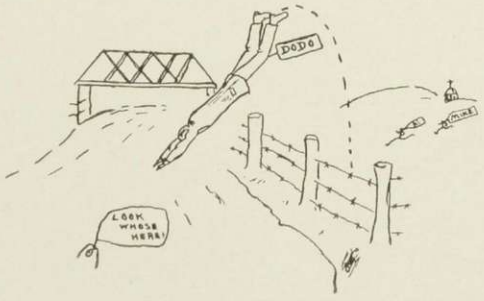
And Spiedle got a lantern,
And put his sweatshirt on,
And ran down to the river
And yelled till almost dawn.

Then after hours of searching
They found that he was safe,
Because the spot he landed on
Was found by Mikey Lahiff.

And all this time the freshman
Was safe in Tuckie's bed;
But sad thoughts of the morrow night
Still filled his mind with dread.

Perhaps in days that are to come
Some future freshman bold
Will do as brave a deed some night
As here has been retold.

But no one who helped look for him
Will e'er forget, by G——
The night the breaking waves near drowned
"Marvellous Jimmie" Dodd.



Fat McConnell stood on an Albany street corner, Inauguration Day. As the long procession of carriages went by towards the State House and the crowd began to gather, Fat was amazed. He took his "summer squash" out of his mouth, expectorated deliberately, and remarked in an awed voice, "Gosh, that's a big funeral!"

Tubby Woodward (to innocent bystander): "How much can Teddy bear?"
Innocent Bystander: "Darned if I know."
Tubby: "As much as Billykin."

Popular Songs Revised

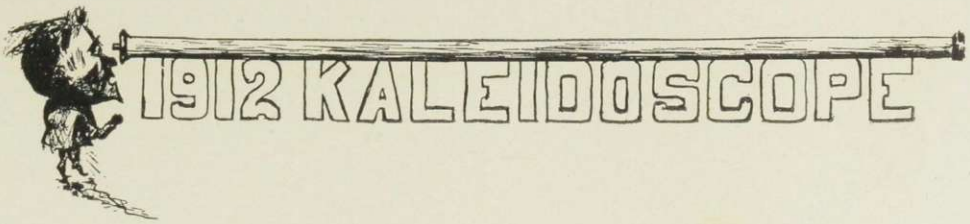
"Any old Prof. that's a good old Prof.
Is the right old Prof. for me;
He don't have to look like the Profs. in this book
If a cinch course his should be;
He don't need to mark
Hard on the shark
Or be too dead easy;
But any old Prof. that's a good old Prof.
Is the right old Prof. for me."

How They Do It in West Rutland

Sessions: "Once when I was bowling candlesticks—"

Halves Would Sound Better

Brown: "The book says the Cambrian is divided into three—what, Miss Bullard?"
Miss Bullard (confidently): "Divisions."



I chatter over cuts and rules,
My tongue is silent never;
And girls come in and girls go out
While I talk on forever.

I wander down the campus walk
To join the waiting——,
And tell her all the latest news,
For I talk on forever.

And then we gossip through the day,
But this you'll know, however,
Though others may have things to say,
Still I talk on forever.

And some grow pale and wish me dead,
Or say, "Wish time would shelve her!"
But even in the other world
I shall talk on forever.

And there among the hosts of shades
Of sophomores passing clever,
My equal will I ne'er confess
And I'll talk on forever.

A Reform Needed

Prof. Crafer, lecturing: "When the case came up, five out of four voted for it and four against it."

As Others See Us

Just a little study,
Just a cut or two,
Just a question you can't answer,
Just a flunk for you,
Just an hour for practice,
Just another date,
Just a lengthy game of cards, or
Just a drive—out late.
Just another bill run up for
Just another feed,
Just about time to go to bed,
Just a minute to read,
Just another yarn to tell,
Just a talk with "wife",
Just an average student's day,
Ain't it a H—L of a life?

Finals and College over,
The next train home for me;
And may there be no notices or bills
When I get home, by Gee!

A Psalm of Cutting

Tell me not in empty phrases
Cutting classes is a dream;
For the man is dead who cuts not,
Or things are not what they seem.

College life is real, earnest,
Most important is our play;
Not to study for a brass key
Is the reason that we stay.

College days are short and fleeting,
And our cuts, tho' rare they be,
Still, like all our bills, mount upward
Till the total's sad to see.

Lives of cutters all remind us
We can cut as well as they,
And, departing, leave behind us
Just the grinds, who always stay.

Let us then be out and cutting,
Our fifty marks are to be used,
And when they are all exhausted,
Learn to cut—and get excused.

Anything to Oblige

Charlie Baker: "I should prefer to have you stand when you rise in this class."

Foolish Question

Cunny: "Can you recognize without all the sensations?"
Mul: "Why yes, but not without any of them."

Crafer, again: "In the early days in this country they used tobacco as currency, they even paid their ministers in tobacco. You might say they gave a quid for a quod."

Monny's Lament

Oh! where and oh! where is my sister gone?
Oh! where and oh! where is she?
With her little black hat and her chopped-off coat,
Oh! where and oh! where is she?

I've searched all over the campus here,
I've looked under every tree;
For I've only seen her eight times today,
My sister, oh! where is she?

In Higher Education
The thing we strive to do
Is to teach as much as possible
While we have you here in view:

So gentle little Freshies
We write with purpose set,
And you can learn your letters,
And a whole lot more, we'll bet.

A Stands for Arnold
Who is so very tall,
That he is awfully nervous
For fear he'll have a fall.

We should like to have spoken of Agnew, the pygmy, or Phil Andrus, the dominie, but space forbade.

B Is for Fungus Burt,
The human reference book.
He knows an awful lot of things—
And shows it by his look.

We really had an awful time between Spiedle Barnes and Young Buddie, but finally decided in favor of the latter as his claim to greatness rests on a firmer basis. Many have flunked but only one gets the Valedictory.

C Why that's for Chalmers;
It also stands for Coates,
And genial old Fat Cleary,
Who o'er his figure gloats.

D Is for Russell Dale,
Who runs a "launderee";
And also for Slim Davison,
Whose walk is fair to see.

It also reminds of us Dodo but the exploit that brought him fame is commemorated elsewhere.

E Stands for the term marks
That some of us get,
When to pass without study
Our efforts are set.

F Stands for the people
We spoke of before;
Also stands for the Fussers,—
We have quite a store.

G Stands for Gorham,
And Grope as well,
Likewise for Willy Greenleaf,
Who's always raising thunder.

H Brings up Harris,
Both of them in fact,
They used to be real angels,
But now, oh, how they act!
That is, How they think they act!

Buster Hemenway, the brawny, Bush Hedges of the varied campus experiences, and Russ Hallock of the pompadour, all were left out of this effusion. But four lines is a very short space to bring all of them in.

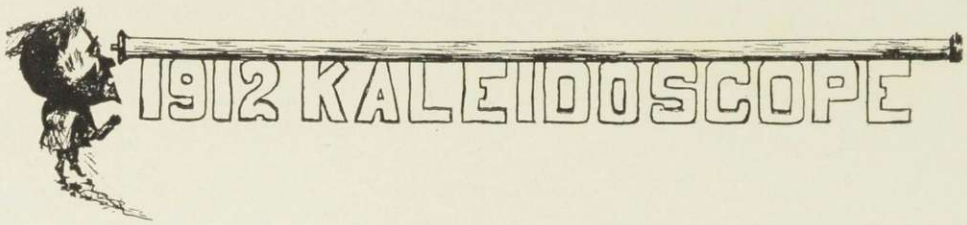
I That means idiots,
The worst ever seen,
And every one but a sophomore
Will sure know whom we mean.
This applies to a limited extent to the freshmen, too.

J This is wholly freshmen,
The biggest jays there are,
But some of them may live it down,
The others are gone too far.

K Stands for Kidder
And Kopke and King
As well as for Kilburn,
Who sweetly doth sing.

L Is for Lahiff
Also called "Grouchy Mike";
For "Dippy Dan" Leonard,
Whose brain's on a strike—
Since the Colgate game.

M Brings Froggie into line—
Mr. Morrison, you know;
And likewise Fat McConnell,
And Charlie Mul also.



Oh, gee! We know sumpin about the last two. We promised we wouldn't tell, tho, and we dursent, for they might raise us a few as it would take a good, straight run to beat that pair.

"Siphon Bill" Monroe should not be omitted.

N Here stands for Mr. Noyes,
The quietest of men,
He seldom has a word to say;
But (sh!) cusses now and then.

O Represents the Irish brigade,
O'Connell and both O'Neills,
And likewise is for Ormsbee,
Whose words are mostly squeals.

P Stands for Cherub Palmer,
And for Mistress Parker, too,
As well as for Splint Potter,
And Pollard with his sweater blue.

Frankie Williams really ought to be here as long as Pollard is, but while we know he is still pea green we left him out because our space was limited.

Q Doesn't stand for any one
But the profs always ask us questions,
If any one knows about other Q's,
We're open for suggestions.

R Is for Clint Reynolds;
"Marie" Ratti, and Root;
And, too, for Ed. Ryan,
Whose wig is a beaut.

We should have spoken of Ryder if his name were "Soot"; but Smut did not rhyme well.

S E. Sherwood Stowell Sunderland,
And C. L. Smiddy as well,
And B. F. Smith and Hiram Sesh,
Whose language is simply h—l.

"Josh" Stillson, of midnight oil fame, belongs to the overflow. He was at the club when we called.

T Is for Earl Tracey,
Whose jokes make us laugh;
For Ike Tuck, and Art Thomas,
Built like a giraffe.

U We pondered and pondered
For something to choose,
Till we quit in despair,
Saying "Oh, what's the use!"

V Mr. H. Jackson Vail
Who came from Dartmouth here,
He, too, burns lots of midnight oil,
Why, is not so clear.
In other words we won't say why.

W Royal Alexander Wray,
He of the cheerful grin.
If studying were a dreadful crime
He'd be mighty free from sin.

Also space is reserved for Harry Williams, but he is a pretty good fellow, so we won't tell all we might about Harry.

X Is the hour, according to rule,
When all of the fussers must go,
When they stand on the doorstep and say to each girl,
"It's terribly early, you know."

Y 's for Yap Youngs,
A very smart lad,
But a rather fresh freshman.
Isn't it sad?

Z. Thanks be there isn't any,
For Zeke Goddard went away,
And so we fill a vacuum,
And finish up this lay.

IF KIPLING HAD TAKEN CUNNY'S PSYCHOLOGY, HE MIGHT HAVE WRITTEN IT THIS WAY:

When the last after image is fixated and the books have been all thrown away;
When the oldest professor has beat it and the last man made P. B. K.;
We shall rest, and faith! we shall need it! lie down for a period or two,
Till the devil, with all of his torments, shall give more of such things to do.
And those that got A's shall be punished—they shall sit in a redhot chair
And gaze at a glowing chunk of coal for the after image there:
While only the devil shall see them, and only the devil shall mark,
And no one shall ever get by—not even a former shark.
But each in his redhot desk chair shall study and work and slave,
For this is the fate of psychology fiends in the lands beyond the grave.

Starr Hall

I stood in Starr Hall at midnight,
When the dorms were wrapped in gloom,
And the wild yells of the freshmen
Sounded from room to room.

I heard a terrible racket
On the stairs above my head,
And the sound of furniture falling,
And the clatter of feet that fled.

And far in the noisy distance,
On this wonderful autumn night,
The splash of falling water
Marked the start of a fight.

How often, oh, how often!
I had wished that this terrible crew
Would spend some time on their studies
So I could study, too.

And my mouth was full of cuss words,
As my day had been full of flunks,
For through both door and window
The noise came in in chunks.

But forever and forever,
As long as Starr Hall stands,
As long as the freshmen roughhouse,
As long as the soph commands;

The noise and the fearsome mixup
With voices trying to sing,
Those wild sounds of the midnight hour
Through the halls of the dorm will ring.

ONE OF THE NEW ONES

To Yap

A youth there was from a Jersey town,
Who would for a polish to college go down
Decked out with flaming socks and a weird-looking tie,
And a suit whose every check aloud for help did cry, Oh my!

"Now," said he, "with people I surely will take;
No one will dare say that I am a fake,
But all will in wonder gaze and cry,
"By the color of his tie he's a New York guy!" Oh my!

When here at last he did arrive,
The shock of what he heard he scarce did survive:
Yes, there was a crowd a-standing by—
"By the color of his socks he's a pretty fresh guy."

A Horrible Tale

('13. take warning)

One day, when old Mephisto was looking o'er his place,
He saw a worn-out spirit a-lying on its face.
The other larger spirits had left it all alone,
And when it heard the devil's step it said, with anguished moan:

"I'm Midd's one striking failure, the Class of 1911,
I knew I must be here at last—I couldn't get to heaven.
Even my supply of gas could not prevent my fall,
So I spend my days in Hades and my nights in Painter Hall.

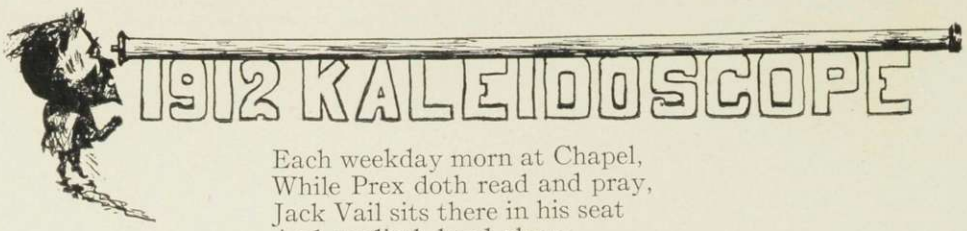
"I started out in a wonderful way—like classes always do;
I cleaned up '10 my Freshman year—and then I was lost to view;
I got my banquet, that they know, tho' I had to lie to go,
And sneaked away the day of a game—Oh, I hate to tell it so!

"I thought I could debate one year—I had a dandy team,
But when '12 won from T. C. A. I knew what that must mean;
So I squealed out, but still I claimed—and it was surely right—
That I never was defeated, nor was I—at least not quite.

"That spring we had a track meet—at least 12 did they say;
But as for me—I don't know why—I wasn't there that day.
And then came baseball, dreadful day, I did my very best,
I put it off as long as I could—but you can guess the rest.

"Now this is all my story; this is why I'm here,
For I barely lasted long enough to finish Senior year.
Why, when I was a Senior—alas that such things come to pass!—
They took two captains of our teams out of the Junior Class!"

The devil smiled to hear this tale so sad it made him grin,
And he lugged this ghost to a Sulphur Vat apart from the others therein,
And he put up a busted basketball with date of birth '07.
And there forever it shall remain—the spirit of 1911.



Each weekday morn at Chapel,
While Prex doth read and pray,
Jack Vail sits there in his seat
And studieth hard alway.

Now all ye profs who give hard tasks
Hear this and mark it well—
You'll have to pay the penalty
If Jack Vail goes to Hell.

An Extract from One of Monroe's Bluffs That Failed

"Primitive man early began to realize the advantages of individuality. They saw that a farmer who planted his hay in October would not get along as fast as one who planted it in April."

As down the College hill there passed
A youth who chewed and thought it great,
And three times every day he ate

Cooledge: "Before Christ."

Oh, Billy!

Billy Burrage comes to a rather strong exclamation in Greek and translates it "D——n", at which Phil Andrus cries out in horrified tones, "Why, Professor!" Billy apologises profusely to Phil and the class goes on.

Starr Hall Anthem

His Dream

Buddy sat in church one day,
Tired out—all in;
Alas! it grieves me much to say
He slept, nor thought it sin.

The preacher in his sermon said,
"The hairs of your head they are numbered,"
And the sound of the words removed a dread
From Buddy, as he slumbered.

He awoke with a start as he heard them spoken
And down on his knees in his pew he fell,
And fervently prayed, in accents broken,
"Send the back numbers, O Lord, to thy servant as well."

WHAT DOES HE HEAR ?

To Hamlin Commons

By A. Border

Oh, dear location of the day's chief joy,
Loved spot where thrice each period of toil
We'd go to feast on corned beef that they boil
Too long, or foods that do our nose annoy
By perfumes redolent that senses cloy
With odoriferous onslaughts while they spoil;
Washed down with water that the pipes do roil,
Brought slowly in to us by freshmen coy!
Fond recollections of thy table's state;
The granite plates on which our forks so rub;
The many mouths all clamoring for grub;
The sure starvation of one coming late;
The tray let fall by some unhappy dub;—
Oh, Hamlin Commons! meal times sure were great!

National Life Insurance Company

Montpelier, Vermont

Mutual — Organized 1850

JOSEPH A. DE BOER, President — OSMAN D. CLARK, Secretary

Assets	$50,440,519.33
Liabilities	44,360,917.83
Surplus	6,079,601.50
Insurance in Force	167,261,000.00

The National has just placed upon the market a very attractive Monthly Income Policy and it would welcome an opportunity to show you how it would fit your case.

What a Monthly Income Policy would mean to your family or one or more of its members.

It supplies the cash at the beginning of every month to meet the grocery, meat, rent and other bills.

It does this not for a few months only but so long as your wife lives and for two hundred and forty months (twenty years) anyway, whether she lives that long or not

It guarantees a monthly income certain until your children, if you have any, reach their maturity, complete their education and are able to care for themselves. A comfortable thought.

It costs nothing for the care of your estate or the collection of the income.

It provides for a surplus interest dividend annually on the anniversary of the first payment. A strong feature and one not possible in a non-participating company.

It requires no consultation with lawyers, administrators, trustees, bankers, brokers or agents.

It leaves your family independent and comfortable.

It practically administers your estate as you would do it yourself if you lived.

Repeating Shotguns

USED IN THE U. S. ARMY.

The U. S. Army authorities know a gun; that is why, when they decided to equip some troops with repeating shotguns, they selected the Winchester in preference to all other makes. The experts of the U. S. Ordnance Board also know a gun; that's why, after submitting a Winchester Repeating Shotgun to all sorts of tests, they pronounced it safe, sure, strong and simple. If you want a shotgun—buy the one whose strength and reliability led the U. S. Army authorities to select it and the U. S. Ordnance Board to endorse it—that's the Winchester.
